Artists-In-Schools Residency Procedures and Information

Procedure for Selecting a Residency:

1. Determine your school's residency goals, objectives and requirements.
2. Appoint a staff person to be the In-School-Coordinator (ISC) for the residency. The ISC is responsible for communicating with Fairbanks Arts Association (FAA) Education Coordinator, the artist and participating teachers throughout the residency. The ISC is also responsible for developing a residency plan and schedule with the artist.
3. Look through the catalog to select an artist for your school who is a good fit for the type of residency your school is looking for. Contact the FAA Education Coordinator at 456-6485 ext. 222 if you have further questions about artists listed in this directory.
4. Establish contact with your chosen Artist and the FAA Education Coordinator to select residency dates. Contact the Education Coordinator to make your residency request. (A complete guide for planning a residency is included in this directory.)
5. Complete the AIS contract and send it to FAA. This step must be completed before the residency starts.

RESIDENCY GUIDELINES

1. Residencies must be a minimum of 1 week in length. Flexible scheduling may be utilized. Each school may receive more weeks if funds are available.
2. The cost to the school is $400 per week, as well as providing supplies and lunch for the Artist. FAA is responsible for $600 per week, so that the Artist is paid a total of $1,000 per week. Some artists may require a higher fee, in which case the school will need to pay more. FAA payments cannot exceed $600 per week. The school must submit a Purchase Order request to the district on the first day of residency or pay FAA $400 per week of residency for a residency to occur. FAA will invoice the FNSBSD Administrative Office once the school has furnished FAA with a PO # and the residency has reached completion.
3. The school is responsible for providing art supplies. Discuss this with the Artist prior to the residency to determine what the needs for materials will be.
4. The school is asked to provide FAA with digital photos taken throughout the residency, along with a final evaluation report and supporting documentation including copies of publicity materials, flyers, handouts etc. Failure to do so will jeopardize residency eligibility for that school for the following year. All school publicity should also be included. Applause letters to the News-Miner should be written promptly. FAA and Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) must also be credited at all times in all media coverage of the event.

Artist Directory 2016-2017

All artists listed in this handbook are local and are required to participate in a Teaching Artist Training Academy developed by the Fairbanks Arts Association in collaboration with the FNSBSD Art Center. This training course ensures that the artists going into the schools have the necessary skills for a successful residency. Please be aware that more artists periodically complete the required course and are added to the AIS roster. For a complete list of artists throughout the year visit <https://fairbanksarts.org/artist-directory/>. Inquire with the Education Coordinator for additions to our list of teaching artists. There are many teaching artists throughout the state of Alaska who have participated in similar training courses. For a complete list of teaching artists outside of the Fairbanks North Star Borough, visit the State Teaching Artist Roster via the Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) https://education.alaska.gov/aksca/AIE/teaching-artist-roster-2016_2017.pdf or contact the ASCA Arts in Education staff in Anchorage at (907) 269-6682.

"Primarily a watercolor painter, I also create cartoons, caricatures, and illustrations. I enjoy teaching students to use various watercolor and/or cartooning techniques to make interesting mobiles, paper sculptures, cards, or small books. Art is a wonderful glue that can successfully merge cross-curricular concepts, and teachers can use my lessons for later projects."

"I moved to Alaska to teach second/third graders in a Yupik/Athabaskan village along the Kushokwim River. I quickly found that this is truly a multi-media paradise for artists like myself. I love taking something old and recycling it to make a whole new experience in art. I feel students should not be afraid of the art experience and I encourage all students to express their individuality to the fullest."

Christa M. Bentele

"I've been an artist all my life and in the last 25 years have taught art to 4 – 85 year olds, either in classrooms, private lessons, or small group settings. I'm experienced in a wide variety of techniques and mediums, including oils, acrylics, watercolor, oil pastels, inks, dyes, and colored pencils. My objective is to pass on my love for art by engaging my students in fun, creative projects which awaken the hidden talents within and give each student the feeling of success and artistic pride. In order to complement and enhance your school's curriculum I can tailor my lesson plan accordingly, which could then be used by teachers in the future, as I will leave simple, detailed instructions for each art project."

"I retired after teaching secondary art (Drawing, Painting, Sculpture, Jewelry, Glass, Ceramics, Printmaking) for 34 years, and am currently a painter and glass artist. Teaching art for so many years made me a sort of "Jack of all trades," so I can design almost any art experience for your students and tailor it for any age level. I believe art can enhance your current curriculum, and would love to design an art experience for your students that is not only fun, but ties into what they are currently learning."

Nicole Dunham

Age Levels: All ages

"Printmaking and painting are adaptable to all ages. With young students I would introduce projects centered around linocuts with wood or linoleum, collagraphs, gelli printing, and leaf printing. With older students, we could do intaglio, reduction woodcuts, and silkscreen. My projects would center around observation of natural objects or landscapes (both macro and micro), and encouraging a sense of place through experience with what surrounds us. I have Bachelor's degrees in both Art and Natural Resources. I can relate knowledge in botany, natural resources, agriculture, and biology to art to make connections into science and other subjects. Projects could be a unique art experience or related to curriculum and current lessons."

"I currently spend my time in Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska. My adventurous spirit brought me to the last frontier in 2012 where I am first and foremost a photographer who takes interest in social and environmental awareness. Though I enjoy working with students to complete murals and other collaborative projects. I am open to working with all age groups, incorporating STEAM subjects and bringing the joy of creating art into the classroom."

"I am a multidisciplinary artist. I have developed techniques to teach even the youngest artist to create realistic "big guy" art as well as an "I can" attitude. I set high expectations for my students and find that they respond to the challenge, exceeding their own and their parents' expectations. My classes includes drawing, shading, texture, color theory and creating a color wheel, painting (mixing their own colors), and presentation. Classes can include grid drawing, perspective, composition, more color theory, watercolor, acrylic, oil, and 3D using Sculpey clay. All classes end with an art show. Projects are tailored to age group."

"I view art as a form of exploration. Whether I have an entire wall, a piece of paper, a block of wood, or a stretched canvas, I will delight in sharing an artistic adventure with students. I have many ideas for projects already planned, including collaborative murals, linoleum block printing, personal journals, and lessons in scientific illustration. I am also very flexible, and enjoy developing new project ideas that are specific to certain ages, subjects or materials. I am especially interested in place-based education and fostering connections between the "STEAM" subjects. I specialize in woodblock and linoleum carving, collaborative murals, acrylic painting, pen and ink illustration, silkscreen printing, and collage."

"I am eager to help students discover the satisfaction that comes from holding a book that they have made themselves. There are many creative bookmaking processes available and appropriate for the skill levels of all elementary students. I am also interested in helping students make puppets, quilts, or large 3-dimensional dioramas that bring stories, science, or history to life. As a teacher and artist in the Fairbanks community for the past 25 years I have been privileged to observe the development of skills, creativity, and enthusiasm that come with hands-on experiences in the arts."

"I have been orchestrating successful AIS residencies in the Interior for several years, completing many projects with every age of student. I enjoy the challenge of structuring projects with a school's particular needs, budget, and interest, and have a particular fondness for working with rural and smaller schools. While my focus has been to utilize recycled materials to create murals, I have also enjoyed a variety of other sessions including kite-making, watercolor, acrylic panel murals, and a silk-screen t-shirt project. With your students, I will focus on tailoring our project to each individual, so that he or she is able to experience the full scale of progression to create a unique piece of art. I am also happy to dovetail our project with any ongoing classroom lesson, such as science or natural history."

Linda PfistererIllustrating your Writing, Watercolor Painting*Age Levels: All ages*Phone: (907) 479-4712*E-mail: linda.pfisterer@gmail.com

"Illustrating what you write can help students develop their work both visually and with words. I like to work with both students and teachers to choose media and develop lessons with the necessary skills they need to create a visual expression to enhance their writing. Watercolor paint, crayon, ink and pencils are used with lessons in shading for depth, creating texture and drawing action people and animals."

"Watercolor has been useful to me in journaling and as a media easy to transport for any occasion. Progressive watercolor techniques and color theory can be taught to all ages like building blocks creating many levels of painterly effects. As an art educator, I have developed age appropriate lessons to help students experiment and develop the many possibilities watercolor paint can offer. Student products can also be used as a background for poetry or covers for a project they have done."

"I am a certified art teacher with a wealth of experience working with students of all ages and from diverse backgrounds. I have a Master of Education with a concentration in art education from Towson University in Maryland as well as a Master of Fine Arts from UAF. In my own practice I am a painter and printmaker and my current work explores the small details of the Alaskan landscape. As an art educator I am fluent in a wide range of media and am interested in designing projects to enhance curriculum. In addition to witnessing the pure joy that results from making art, I love to see the creative problem solving skills that emerge."

"I am primarily a photographic artist. I was trained at Columbia College Chicago in commercial and fine art photography. I earned my MFA degree in fine art photography and drawing at UAF in 2011. Over the past few years, my artistic/studio practice has included more drawing, 19th Century photographic processes, and installation art. I find it's helpful to learn and master new processes and techniques as I work and grow as an artist. However, photography is still my main tool of communication and expression. It is the central art form in each exhibition I produce and is the heart of my artistic curiosity. For students, I find it invaluable to learn about light, shadow, cameras, and what photographs do, say, and discuss both in our everyday experience as well as on gallery and museum walls."

Amy Reisland-SpeerPainting, Drawing, Murals*Age Levels: All ages*Phone: (907) 683-2590*E-mail: amysitsoo@yahoo.com*Website: www.sitsoostudio.com

"I am primarily a painter. My subjects include large canvases painted with brightly colored Alaskan animals to smaller canvases with realistic birds. I enjoy using bright fun colors to represent our local Alaskan animals. Playing with color and design is a great way to experiment with art for children of all ages. Using unrealistic hues helps illustrate the idea of value and how color can effect an image. It is more fun to paint a blue moose than a brown moose!"

Shelby SandMixed Media*Age Levels: All ages*Phone: (907) 378-7878*E-mail: shelby.j.sand@gmail.com

"As a college coach and player, as an artist, and as a student myself I worked to understand negative self-talk. We are often told "change your attitude!" Has anyone ever taught you how? Learning to use your emotional brain alongside IQ is what makes individuals' truly successful. Ultimately all success comes down to relationships. My students will work through open-ended ideas within the pages of books. We will work through telling their story through visual mixed-media expression as well as language. Visual journals are meant to document day-to-day experiences, activities, and emotions and are often autobiographical in nature. Visual journals have been used for centuries as records of ideas and imagination. It is an accessible project for all ages and abilities. This process fits into any schools initiatives and themes, from bullying to patience and understanding. Students will work on skills to express themselves and understand their emotions and others. I bring both my undergraduate experience in the arts and my Masters in business to my theory of the greater importance of emotional intelligence. "Good decisions require far more than factual knowledge. They are made of self-knowledge and emotional mastery when they're needed most.- Emotional Intelligence 2.0."

"I engage children in learning experiences that exercise their imagination as well as their power of observation (focusing on emotion, color, lighting, and depth perception). Children will explore various styles and techniques of known artist; then experiment with these techniques to create unique images of their own. Celebration of the ordinary is another theme I use. Projects such as stenciling water bottles, printing on pillow covers, or tattooing Xtra Tuff boot provides a tangible link between the creative process and people's everyday lives. I welcome any opportunity to tie art projects to science or history lessons."

Comics, Drawing

"From editorial cartoons to single-panel gags, syndicated strips to webcomics, alternative to mainstream comic books, storyboards and character design to graphic novels: the medium of sequential art is popular and has gained in critical recognition. Comics are a legitimate and uniquely engaging interdisciplinary educational tool for both literacy and the visual arts through writing and drawing. Students of all levels will be encouraged to explore and incorporate personal interests, topics of relevant to their community and cultural perspectives. Students will be exposed to work of contemporary and historical creators, materials and techniques, commercial applications, professional resources, and learn how to produce and develop their own pieces in conjunction with demonstrations and classroom exercises. Additional sessions exploring minicomics and collaborative pages are available for advanced groups with extended residency. For over 25 years I've drawn my cartoon feature for the Fairbanks News-Miner and other publications. I also teach drawing courses as an adjunct in the UAF Fine Arts Department, and routinely give lectures and workshops for institutions and organizations."

"I am at heart an Alaskan and a painter and in recent years have begun using large canvasses, and bright, bold colors to paint Alaska's flora and fauna. As an artist and painter it is important to always be looking and seeing the world around you, to go and spend time inspecting and studying the small things as well as the large. Notice changes in color with light and shadows, how the direction of the sun illuminates objects. As an artist in the school, my goal is that children will play with color, make and use their own colors, explore opposites and contrast and learn to see color in all of its variations and attempt to represent their world both imaginary and realistic."

Age Levels: K-12th grades

Phone: (907) 590-2605

E-mail: karstomberg@gmail.com

“The heart of my artwork is usually inspired by nature. I am primarily a painter and printmaker but enjoy making books and collages using natural materials in conjunction with loosely painted papers and printmaking techniques with color. I do traditional botanical illustration and love to teach observational colored pencil drawing as well as looser painting with watercolor or acrylic. Art making has always been part of life for me. My curiosity, observations, learning experiences and travel become part of my work. In the same way, integrating writing, world culture or science with art is a natural part of my teaching practice. Providing students of all ages with opportunities to experience their creativity successfully in a school setting is a pleasure.”

My teaching has encompassed making art with all ages in formal and informal settings. I taught visual art at FNSBSD for 25 years and arts education at UAF as an adjunct for 6 years. Early planning with your school will enrich our residency. I have a lot of experience designing workshops for and with teachers, as well as making culminating events or projects with students.”

“I am primarily a printmaker, but also work with wood and other materials. For the last eight years I have conducted very successful mosaic residencies in communities across Alaska and recently added printmaking to my residency repertoire. I enjoy working with all ages and have good, adaptable projects for students K-12. Because I want to get to know your students in a meaningful way, I will no longer be conducting full-school residencies with large elementary schools. If your school is significantly larger than 200 students we will need to identify a smaller contact group.”

“My goal is to foster confidence and wonder within each person through the creative process. I offer art projects with map and paper collage on tiles (as coasters for individual students or a mounted installation) that are great for students of all ages. I also teach birch bark weaving workshops for smaller groups, 6th grade and older. These weaving projects can incorporate student artwork or written elements. Land art (outdoor collage with local materials) temporary installation workshops are best scheduled in fall and spring. My teaching and gardening experience allows me to relate the art themes to school gardens, science and math curriculum, and include non-fiction reading extension projects. I am flexible and happy to work with each school designing an art residency that fit their needs.”

Zentangle®
Age Levels: 3rd-12th grades
Phone: (907) 460-2002 E-mail: Sandra@stillwinterstudio.com

“The Zentangle method is a fun, easy-to-learn way of creating beautiful images by drawing structured patterns. It has been found to increase creativity, attention span and the ability to concentrate, improve hand-eye coordination, and promote a sense of wellbeing and artistic confidence. The Zentangle method meets National Art Core Standards and is an interdisciplinary tool that connects art and science. I have been a Certified Zentangle Teacher since 2010, teaching public and private workshops, teacher in-service and educator conferences in Fairbanks/North Pole, Anchorage and Santa Fe, NM. I have also exhibited my work in group and solo shows.”

Storytelling, Traditional and Digital photography, Cultural Studies, Writing, Drawing, and Constructing Dioramas
Age Levels: Prefer K-6 and smaller schools or classrooms (but will work with classrooms up to 30 students and open to working with older students).
Phone: (907) 590-3964 Email: lianemaebudden@gmail.com

“Traditionally trained in the fine art of photography, over the past five years I have taken up the art of storytelling through my images, the written word, and by constructing dioramas. I enjoy working with elementary students in exploring ways in which they can tell their stories. I am interested in using Class Dojo as a platform for storytelling as well as the traditional methods. My passion about art is the ability of using it as a tool for self-exploration and healing. I’d like to see art used more frequently as a method to aide children and adults through difficult times in their lives. Once a person finds their artistic voice nothing can stop them from using it!”

"For over 35 years I have made sculptures from many different materials. During the 1980's I did multiple AIS residencies in the Fairbanks area primary and secondary schools and have taught in different Alaska fine arts camps as well as in my studio. I've found clay to be a universal medium for teaching sculpture both in the round and in bas-relief. With younger children I use simple clay modeling lessons that give them experience following along with directions, help them develop planning skills, and learn basic clay modeling techniques. With older students, I use clay to teach both modeling and carving methods. The lessons help develop both tactile and visual observation skills as well as a sense of the form, texture, and character of their subjects. Many of these innovative exercises use my collection of beautiful natural objects as models. I provide teachers with handouts of these and other lessons which they can use to further build on these skills. As with most of my own schooling, the focus will be on developing the skills and sensitivities students need in order to sculpt rather than on creating finished pieces. Depending on our schedule, I can do a brief sculpting demonstration at the beginning of each class."

"I've worked with glass in many forms my whole life from large stained glass windows to sun catchers, boxes, jewelry, fused plates, mosaic and whatever I decide or customers ask me to create. With many phases of glass there is always a challenge for a new project and to design something new. Kids are fun to work with to present the basic project and see where their imagination takes them to create their fantastic masterpiece. It's fun to watch and be a part of. "I enjoy making designs in functional pottery with found objects, like pen tops, screwdriver bits, bubble wands, etc., and have a great time teaching kids to make them too. Kids, clay, and bins of designing objects are a fun combination, especially for the dirt-deprived children of Fairbanks during the long winter months. Kindergarten through third graders will create a little round bowl and learn the concept of radial design as well as vocabulary about the process of making pottery. Fourth to eighth graders will learn to make a round, lidded box that incorporates both linear and radial design, as well as the vocabulary included in the process. I am open to discussing other projects as well."

“My goal is to foster confidence and wonder within each person through the creative process. I offer art projects with map and paper collage on tiles (as coasters for individual students or a mounted installation) that are great for students of all ages. I also teach birch bark weaving workshops for smaller groups, 6th grade and older. These weaving projects can incorporate student artwork or written elements. Land art (outdoor collage with local materials) temporary installation workshops are best scheduled in fall and spring. My teaching and gardening experience allows me to relate the art themes to school gardens, science and math curriculum, and include non-fiction reading extension projects. I am flexible and happy to work with each school designing an art residency that fit their needs.”

“I moved to Alaska to teach second/third graders in a Yupik/Athabaskan village along the Kushokwim River. I quickly found that this is truly a multi-media paradise for artists like myself. I love taking something old and recycling it to make a whole new experience in art. I feel students should not be afraid of the art experience and I encourage all students to express their individuality to the fullest.”

“Traditionally trained in the fine art of photography, over the past five years I have taken up the art of storytelling through my images, the written word, and by constructing dioramas. I enjoy working with elementary students in exploring ways in which they can tell their stories. I am interested in using Class Dojo as a platform for storytelling as well as the traditional methods. My passion about art is the ability of using it as a tool for self-exploration and healing. I’d like to see art used more frequently as a method to aide children and adults through difficult times in their lives. Once a person finds their artistic voice nothing can stop them from using it!”

“Storycraft is the art and practice of working with stories. I begin with examples and class participation before we break into small groups for projects and activities with more individualized focus. We have two distinct areas of exploration to choose from:

Storytelling: Students begin with old tales, allowing them to focus on the process of learning and telling, exploring the roles that vocal variety and body language play in communication. Sessions involve games and activities designed to encourage movement and remember lines.

Storybuilding: Here our focus is on taking a string of action and/or discovery and polishing it into a short story or an outline for a longer form, suitable for telling or writing. Sessions include crafts that function as story prompts and practice of various story structures.”

“I view art as a form of exploration. Whether I have an entire wall, a piece of paper, a block of wood, or a stretched canvas, I will delight in sharing an artistic adventure with students. I have many ideas for projects already planned, including collaborative murals, linoleum block printing, personal journals, and lessons in scientific illustration. I am also very flexible, and enjoy developing new project ideas that are specific to certain ages, subjects or materials. I am especially interested in place-based education and fostering connections between the “STEAM” subjects. I specialize in woodblock and linoleum carving, collaborative murals, acrylic painting, pen and ink illustration, silkscreen printing, and collage.”

"I am primarily a photographic artist. I was trained at Columbia College Chicago in commercial and fine art photography. I earned my MFA degree in fine art photography and drawing at UAF in 2011. Over the past few years, my artistic/studio practice has included more drawing, 19th Century photographic processes, and installation art. I find it's helpful to learn and master new processes and techniques as I work and grow as an artist. However, photography is still my main tool of communication and expression. It is the central art form in each exhibition I produce and is the heart of my artistic curiosity. For students, I find it invaluable to learn about light, shadow, cameras, and what photographs do, say, and discuss both in our everyday experience as well as on gallery and museum walls."

My main focus is teaching Hip Hop and all its elements, but there are many other styles that I can teach as well. I've worked with ages 5 and up in a dance studio setting. Class will start off with isolations and stretching, then a workout with push ups and sit ups, finally choreography and freestyle. I can create original choreography to a specific class theme if desired. My goal is to encourage students to explore movement, be comfortable in their own body, and build self-esteem by showing them that everyone can dance, and that there are no wrong movements."

"I have been playing music for about 15 years now, with over a dozen groups, and have been writing music for 10 years. I studied songwriting for 2 years at Berklee College of Music, and received a BA in Music from UAF. Music is my passion, and I love sharing the joy of music with students of all ages. Music can change someone's life, and songwriting encourages creativity, focus, empathy, critical thinking, and self-expression. I teach students how to collect their own creative ideas as they arrive, how to develop those ideas into a full song, and how to polish that song into a finished form. I also try to expose students to methods for critical listening to songs, and to the writing of great songwriters, as well as learning about rhythms and rhymes. Through all of this, I aim to teach students that creativity is something within their grasp, and is not magic, but worthwhile and rewarding work, and very much worth doing."

My focus is helping reluctant students understand the power of writing as a vehicle for self-expression and as a way to enact positive change in our world. I place particular emphasis on helping students learn to read effectively as a way to accomplish their writing goals. The skills students practice in writing workshops can be utilized in many other disciplines, including science, math, and history. I try to appeal to multiple learning styles by incorporating movement, other arts, and hands-on activities into writing exercises. My lessons would be effective alone or when presented in conjunction with the work of another teaching artist. “Classes involve improvisation, pantomime, movement, breathing, vocalization and the production of a play. It is possible to work with a musical play; in that case, there will be musical instruction, such as voice and instrumental lessons and dancing. Groups at your school such as orchestra, band, dance or choir can also be involved. I find it especially rewarding to see children improve in their skills, do better than ever at performance time and then be very proud of themselves and their accomplishments. In-School Coordinator's Guide

► If you know an Artist who would qualify but is not in the AIS program and you are interested in having them at your school, please call the FAA Education Coordinator, 456-6485, EXT. 222. We are always looking for new artists.

Securing a residency for your school

Check with your school to make sure that funding is available

Your school is responsible for $400/week of the residency fee which must be paid to the Fairbanks Arts Association. Some artists may require a higher weekly fee, in which case the school will have a higher weekly fee.

Your school must provide Fairbanks Arts Association (FAA) with a Purchase Order number from the school district for the total amount of $400 per week of residency (or more if the artist requires a higher weekly fee). FAA will then invoice the school district, using your Purchase Order number. Alternatively your school may arrange direct payment in other ways i.e. using the school's PCard. Sometimes a school's PTA has paid the school's residency fees to FAA. Whichever method chosen, your school is responsible for paying $400 per week of residency, or the alternative contracted amount if an artist requires a higher weekly fee.

Each school may be approved for 1 week or more of residency depending on available funding and the scope of the project.

Residencies are granted on a first-come-first-served basis as contracts are received. Please be sure that the Artists-in-Schools Contract is completely filled out and signed by the School Principal, the In-School Coordinator, and the Education Coordinator. Return forms to:

Fairbanks Arts Association/F.A.C.E.
C/o FAA Education Coordinator
P.O. Box 72786
Fairbanks, AK 99707

OR
Fax: 456-4112
Call to confirm receipt.

A residency will not be approved for funding until the contract has been signed by all parties.

Important Requirements: Space, Equipment and Supplies

Each residency requires a studio space where the artist can work and teach. Once you determine your Artist and their art form, you should check carefully to see if your school has an appropriate space to accommodate the chosen residency. Keep in mind that some artists may need access to the studio space in the evenings. All In-School Coordinators should provide a quiet space for artists to plan/prep for residency activities and a lockable space to keep personal belongings and materials.

For design arts, media arts, music, traditional arts and visual arts:

- Space appropriate for the Artist to create art in and work with students
- Supplies, materials and equipment needed by the Artist, such as a video camera, editing equipment, tape or compact disc player, camera, tuned piano, slide projector and/or other visual arts needs

For dance:

- Large, open, heated, unobstructed space with suspended-wood floor (not concrete)
- Dressing area and office space
- System to play music (cd or mp3 player) with adequate speakers for rehearsal space and performance

For creative writing:

- Quiet, private space suitable for writing and meeting with students
- Supplies, facilities and assistance in developing a writing sampler
- Secretarial assistance with printing, collating and binding writing samples

For theatre:

- Stage or other space suitable for performance
- Other technical requirements specific to the Artist which may include lights, sound, mats, etc.
- Large, quiet, safe space for classes and workshops when stage is not needed

Planning the Residency

Measuring the Difference the Arts Make

In the world of education, it is important to identify ways to test and demonstrate the changes that have taken place as a result of your project. Schools and organizations that are able to demonstrate learning are poised to be mentors and models to countless others. Documenting the outcome can be an effective advocacy tool to demonstrate how the arts can make a difference. Additionally, documentation helps the Artists-In-Schools Program continue to receive funding and to maximize the educational impact of each residency.

“Think” Evaluation

The best way to think about an evaluation plan or approach is to “begin with the end in mind.” Identify the impact you expect to see as a result of your project and then think clearly about how that progress might be most visible. Once you have clearly defined what you want to see, you can design an evaluation approach to look for those successes.

Evaluation methods should be appropriate to the size and complexity of the project. Sometimes a round table discussion is appropriate and highly useful. Other times, teachers submit written surveys or keep journals.

Document your findings. Provide a narrative describing the way the program impacts students, teachers, administrators and the community in your final project report.

Residency Schedule

The residency schedule is developed to show all daily activities planned with the Artist and participants, throughout the residency, such as planning sessions with teachers, introductory assemblies, Artist and staff workshops, community outreach and final performances or displays. In-School Coordinators are encouraged to be flexible when designing the schedule with the Artist. The Artist and ISC must be ready to compromise to establish a workable schedule for everyone involved, in order to create the best learning environment for the residency. A school district calendar should be available for reference during the planning session. If you have any preconceived notions of how this residency should work, let your Artist know. Perhaps the school is working on a theme or project into which the residency could be integrated. Or you may have ideas regarding blending this program into one of your curricular areas. Express these or any other thoughts with your Artist. They will be able to tell you whether these ideas are workable or not. Or perhaps they can help you to expand your idea. Whatever the case, the more you talk with your Artist, the better the residency will be. A final, agreed, residency schedule should be made available to everyone involved in the residency, including the Artist.

Contact Sessions

A contact session is a meeting between the artist and a group or class. A residency Artist conducts no more than four contact sessions per day. Each contact session is typically 45 minutes to 1 hour long, but may be adjusted to meet the needs of the Artist, participants or discipline. Additional time each day should be scheduled for the Artist's preparation and studio time. Artists may choose to forego their studio time and that is their option - but we encourage them to use this time to demonstrate their skills before school and community members.

Core and peripheral groups

Each residency site must identify core and peripheral groups. The core group meets with the Artist daily. Peripheral groups meet less often with the Artist. Teachers, staff, student, parents and other community members may be selected as core or peripheral group participants. The Artist may not be able to work with everyone. Some disciplines require a great deal of individual instruction. The final decision on group size and composition should be made with the Artist during the planning session.

Artist Communication

During each residency, students and teachers should have access to the Artist via a mailbox placed in the main office. This mailbox allows teachers and students to communicate with the Artist during the residency. The mailbox should be established upon the start of the residency and the staff should be aware of it as a way to communicate with the Artist. This allows a free flow of information and makes keeping in contact during the residency easier. The ISC should also be checking in with the Artist on a daily basis.

Teachers and Staff

Teachers and staff play a critical role in the success of the residency by contributing to the artistic vision of the residency through collaboration with the Artist. They ensure a safe and disciplined atmosphere for work by being present during all contact sessions. They develop themselves professionally through the arts by fully participating in the residency activities. They extend the residency experience by designing follow-up activities. Most importantly, they feel more comfortable thinking and creating like artists themselves.

Parents

Parents are their children's first teachers and, especially during the pre-kindergarten and elementary years, play a crucial role in nurturing their children's creative talents and interests. Whenever possible, include parents as participants. Parent-child workshops are a great way to promote parental involvement and learning during the residency.

Artist Studio & Planning Time

Studio time is a necessary part of each residency. Without time to devote to their own work, many artists could not travel to residencies. Artists need daily time and space to make art. Sponsors should provide adequate studio space and reasonable access during the residency. Artists' studio time should be discussed during planning sessions. Studio time must be open so residency participants can observe the development of artists' work over time. During long-term residencies, some artists may spend two days out of five working in their on-site studios. Planning time is important for artists. They use it to prepare for contact sessions, workshops and public presentations and to evaluate residency progress. Schedule some prep time at the planning meeting.

Staff Professional Development

A strong professional development component is required of every residency. For example a hands-on workshop i.e. providing training and information on the use of specialized art equipment and/or the use of a particular art form in the classroom. Alternatively a presentation could be given on a particular art form, providing examples of how this can be integrated into classes with practical information given as handouts. Participants should gain confidence and understanding of an art discipline and insights into the artist's vision. As the length of the residency increases, so should the number of opportunities for staff professional development. Schedule a minimum of one such opportunity. Advanced planning is essential to ensure the delivery of effective professional development experiences. All staff, especially those scheduled to work with the Artist, should participate.

Community Outreach

Artists and schools should plan ways to extend the residency experience beyond the host site. Consider inviting senior citizens, representatives of businesses, community organizations and government representatives to become part of the residency activities. Please include state legislators in all aspects of your community outreach.

Public Presentations

Residencies give artists important opportunities to present their work. Presentations can be an effective way to enhance the cultural life of a community and help to ensure follow-up activities and exposure of a larger number of individuals to the Artist and their art form. Presentations should not drive the residency; instead, they are a way to share the residency experience with a larger audience. The ISC and Artist should agree on how to schedule a public presentation. The more elaborate the activity, the more preparation time will be needed. Necessary planning and preparation should be taken into account when crafting the schedule and recruiting volunteer assistance. Receptions, open classes, lecture/demonstrations, readings, exhibitions, concerts, plays, dance presentations and other performances are possible. Public presentations should be well publicized.

FAA and ASCA MUST BE credited for running the AIS Program in all publicity, media reports, and printed materials. Please use the following credit line:

The Fairbanks Arts Association's Artists-In-Schools Program is part of the Alaska State Council on the Arts education programs, with funding support from the FNSBSD, Alaska State Legislature, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Rasmuson Foundation and Fairbanks Arts Association are providing additional support with funding.

Also, please notify the FAA Education Coordinator of all events related to AIS residencies.

Closure

As the residency ends, a final closure meeting should be planned for the Artist and participants. They should assess the residency and consider what was and was not successful. This is a time to develop plans that will extend and build on the residency experience. The Artist and participants may suggest ways to support multi-disciplinary teaching, strengthen arts curriculum, use outside artistic resources or shape the next residency.

Assessment

The Artist and ISC MUST submit written final reports at the completion of the residency. These are provided in the back of this booklet. They must be completed within 14 days of the completion of the residency unless it is after May 1, when the forms must be turned in immediately upon residency completion. Other forms of assessment may be used to look at changes in teacher practice and student learning. Photos, journals, video documentation, process portfolios, interviews and observations are valuable ways to reflect on the residency experience and depth of learning by participants.

Living Arrangements for the Artist

Hospitality

Welcoming activities for artists should be held early in each residency. All participants should know who the Artist is, that they are in residency and the focus of the artist's work. Receptions allow the staff to meet the Artist, hear their ideas for residency work and ask related questions. These social activities are not intended to replace the artist-staff workshop for professional development. Artists should have opportunities early in the residency to introduce their work through assembly performances, lectures/demonstrations, workshops or classroom presentations, staff meetings.

Accommodations

Securing free or reduced-rate housing for out of town artists is a responsibility of the ISC. Often, an ISC will arrange for lodging at a local hotel or bed and breakfast in exchange for public recognition of the contribution. Some artists are willing to stay in the homes of staff or community members. Lodging details should be confirmed and communicated with the Artist before the residency. The housing must provide the Artist with a place to shower. Laundry and food facilities should be nearby. For help with lodging, please contact Fairbanks Arts Association.

Meals

Lunch for the Artist should be provided each day. ISCs have found many creative ways to provide lunch, such as offering coupons for local restaurants, having parents and students prepare lunches each day, asking community members to prepare box lunches and, of course, offering the school lunch.

If you are providing the Artist with meals, be sure that the Artist knows where to go and when these meals will be served. Avoid confusing situations, such as delegating meal duty to a different family each night. Running from home to home can be exhausting for the Artist. If the Artist will be in your community over a weekend, be sure they have meals or invitations. Please ask the Artist about their dietary restrictions and be attentive to them.

If the school is providing food for the Artist to prepare by themselves, or if the school will provide an allowance for the artist to buy food, the artist must be provided with kitchen facilities, in or very near their housing.

Site and Community Tour

For artists who are not familiar with your site or community, a tour is a good way to introduce them to their new home away from home. A site floor plan, community map and other support information or materials are helpful.

What a Visiting Artist May Not Know

Be prepared to answer numerous logistical questions, such as:

- Where should I park my car... leave my coat? ...store my supplies?
- Should I buy my lunch, bring it, or is it provided?
- Should I use my first name with students? Should I address teachers by Mr., or Mrs., or use first names?
- Who will help with clean up?
- Are there discipline codes (e.g., hands up for quiet)?
- Can we move the desks?
- Are there established "quiet zones" or times?

An Orientation Packet Sent to the Artist 2-3 weeks Before the Visit Could Include:

- A map to the school from where they will be staying in the community
- A map of the school interior
- A clear schedule of the Artist's activities, including performances, classroom visits or workshops, lunch and teacher meeting times
- Information regarding artist mailbox set up in the main office
- The names of the building administrators, secretaries, custodians, classroom teachers, etc.
- Important instructions on school set-up and clean -up procedures
- A copy of the local newspaper to acquaint the artist with the general community and current events
- A copy of the school newspaper
- Any roles or special considerations the artist should be aware of in your school

Sponsor Grant Agreement

CONTRACT/ FINAL REPORTING FORMS

Contract

Read the Contract paperwork thoroughly. Be sure to note the amount of matching money required to fund your residency. Some artists may require a higher weekly fee, in which case the school will need to pay more, so check carefully what is written under the total amount payable under Part II Consideration. Ensure that you have obtained all necessary contract signatures: (1) the In-School Coordinator, (2) the Artist, and (3) Fairbanks Arts Association's Education Coordinator. Make two copies of the contract and return one promptly to Fairbanks Arts Association; keep one copy for yourself.

Final Report and Evaluation Form

In-School Coordinator and Artist's Final Report and Evaluation forms are available at the back of this handbook. These forms, along with support materials, must be completed and returned to Fairbanks Arts Association within 14 days of the end-date of the residency. Timely submission of the final reporting materials (including photos, other supporting materials) are necessary for continued funding of the AIS Program in FNSBSD.

Failure to submit these reports can jeopardize future ASCA funding for this AIS Program. Information from final reports will be used in the evaluation of future grants.

Legislator Lists

Write your School District Board, legislators and/or other policy makers about your residency and the support you received from Fairbanks Arts Association. Place legislators on your mailing lists. Do not know who your legislators are? Visit: www.akleg.gov (the Alaskan Legislature website). Complete instructions and ideas are included in the Advocacy Section of this Handbook.

Fairbanks Arts Association and ASCA Credit

Because you have been granted public money, you are required to inform the public and legislators that Fairbanks Arts Association and Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) are the source of your funds. Include our logo/name on any brochures, fliers, posters, or other print or electronic materials produced for this residency. Also include the following statement:

The Fairbanks Arts Association Arts in Education Program is part of the Alaska State Council on the Arts with funding support from the FNSBSD, Alaska State Legislature, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Rasmuson Foundation and Fairbanks Arts Association are providing additional support with funding.

Contact with local news sources is important to highlight your residency plans and the granting of public funds. For example, The Fairbanks Daily News Miner often accepts such stories to their “Daily Applause” column. Please make sure to include copies of any publicity when you return your final residency reports to FAA. Fairbanks News Miner: 456-6661

NOTE: It is imperative that Fairbanks Arts Association be informed of the events and media involved in your residency. Please email education@fairbanksarts.org to inform FAA of all media stories, public performances, and any other events involved in the residency.

IN-SCHOOL COORDINATOR'S RESIDENCY RESPONSIBILITIES: BEFORE, DURING, AND AFTER THE RESIDENCY

BEFORE THE RESIDENCY

PROMOTING THE RESIDENCY

- Obtain the Artist's publicity packet, containing photos and a news release, well in advance of the residency
- Take inventory of what media contacts you have. Assign responsibility for writing the news articles and making calls. This is the time for the Artist and In-School Coordinator to define the important ideas to be shared with the community. You should provide information about the Artist, art discipline and why this experience is valuable to students
- Inform newspapers and other local news media about your residency plans. Call them before the residency to discuss publicity opportunities
- Make full use of on-site media, such as a school, district or organization newsletter, mailing lists, bulletin boards, banners, fliers, marquees, closed circuit TV and announcements, web sites and distance learning broadcasts
- Verify facility and space available for public presentations
- Confirm participation and scheduling of volunteers, such as parents, grandparents and local businesses, to support activities
- Invite parents, school board and community members so they will understand and support residency goals, objectives and activities. Their direct involvement can make a difference in future support for arts education programming
- Keep legislators, district school Board members, city council members and other key decision makers informed about the importance of this program. Include them in the residency activities and give them a key role to play, such as welcoming guests or delivering an opening speech. Other options include making a five-minute videotape of the residency, including interviews with students about the residency experience; having parents send something describing their experience, or that of their children, during the residency; or sending letters to legislators, written by students and other participants
- Recognize Fairbanks Arts Association and ASCA in all promotional materials. Use the appropriate ASCA and FAA logos and credit line provided
- Send news clippings, photos, newsletters, videos or other publicity to AIS Program for future promotional use

DURING THE RESIDENCY

- Respect the residency schedule established during the planning session. If you need to amend the schedule, discuss proposed changes with the Artist and residency committee. If a significant change is proposed, confer with the FAA staff before proceeding
- Be flexible if change is needed. New ideas may emerge as the artist and participants work together. As a result, the original residency plan may change
- Maintain open communications. Teachers, staff, the ISC and administrator should talk and share ideas every day with the artist
- Serve as an AIS Program advocate by inviting educators and members of the larger community to participate in the residency activities. Share FAA and ASCA promotional materials with them, so they can learn the full range of our grants, programs and activities

AFTER THE RESIDENCY

- Complete the In-School Coordinator's Final Evaluation Form and Report, and prepare support materials, including photos, video footage, brochures, flyers, school newsletter, media articles, staff/parent emails/letters etc. Return them to the AIS office within 14 days after your residency ends. Teacher and support letters and questionnaires may be included. The Final Evaluation forms are included in the AIS Handbook. Schools/organizations that do not complete and return their final reports will not be eligible for future AIS grants
- Give the Artist's Final Evaluation Form to the Artist, to be returned to Fairbanks Arts Association within 15 days of the residency
- Offer to mentor others in your school district, organization or community who want to learn more about sponsoring a residency
- Meet with the Artist, students, and other participants in the residency to discuss their experience, whether residency goals were met, and what follow-up activities can be held. Thank participants for their contributions
- Present a workshop on the residency during future professional conferences or in-services.
- Thank individuals and organizations that contributed to the success of the residency, especially state legislators, school board and city council members, media representatives and local funders. See the end of this handbook for more ideas on how to thank legislators and help the successful continuation of the AIS Program through advocacy

Contact with local news sources is important to highlight your residency plans and announce the granting of public funds. For example, The Fairbanks Daily News-Miner often accepts such stories for the "Daily Applause" column. Please make sure to include copies of any publicity when you return your final residency reports to FAA. Fairbanks News-Miner: 456-6661.

SAY THANK YOU TO YOUR LEGISLATORS!

The Fairbanks Arts Association Arts in Education Program is part of the Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) with funding support from the FNSBSD, Alaska State Legislature, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

It is very important, as a recipient of a grant from ASCA, that you contact your legislators and let them know how much you appreciate public support of the arts. Here are some ways you and your school can be strong advocates for arts education.

1. Write a letter (sample letter on next page).

Here are some details to include:

- Tell a bit about the project that was funded through our organization and how much you appreciate the grant.
- Tell them if the project would not have been possible without the grant.
- If state support provides your organization leverage to obtain other larger grants, then please state that.
- Have students involved in your project help you with your letter, or better yet, send their own.
- If you have press coverage, include that with the letter.
- Send photos with your letter, taken during the art process and/or of the artwork completed by your students.
- If possible send samples of your students' original pieces of artwork with your letter for display.

2. Who are your legislators? Contact legislators from your residence – not your business. Legislators want to hear from their constituents. Be sure to contact both your Senator and your Representative.

3. Here's how to find your legislators:

- a) Go to the state of Alaska website: www.akleg.gov
- b) Scroll to bottom of page and under the box 'Who Represents me?' enter the appropriate zip code.

If you can't find your legislators, call the Fairbanks Legislative Information Office on 452-4448 and they will help you find your Senator and Representative.

4. Include a copy of this letter in your final report to the Fairbanks Arts Association.

We have more ideas that we'd like to share with you about getting elected officials involved in arts events. Think of every event you hold as an arts advocacy opportunity. Invite a legislator, and when she/he comes, make sure you give proper introductions. By attending an arts event, a politician is personally exposed to the importance of an art organization in the community.

Thank you! You are helping make sure that public funding of the arts continues.

This is a copy of a letter written by a school that participated in the Artists-In-Schools Program. Thank you letters to your legislator are required and a letter is a great way to include students, teachers and parents in the success of a grant-based program. We appreciate your efforts and support and ask that you provide copies of your letters when returning your Final Evaluation forms. You are welcome to use this letter as a guide and to adapt it as you wish. Thank you!

Note: A great way to get signatures is to post the letter(s) or place them on a table at your final performance/exhibition allowing community members, parents and teachers to read and sign at their leisure!
